Tue Madsen's Crash Course in Music Production

Sign up for a crash course in music production Antfarm Style!

As leader of ceremonies, your host Tue Madsen will be taking you through all steps of the production cycle. Starting with, setting up microphone placements, all the way to the final stages of sound design. But more importantly; to dive into the philosophy behind it all and how to work around problems, and learn how to make them your friend instead of your enemy.

See, when you want to make a difference in music production it is a lot about how you go about it, and Tue Madsen have been at this game for over 15 years now and knows a few secrets and he is not afraid to share them!

The course will last five days. You will be housed nearby. We will spend all day talking about sound and music and recording, mixing and mastering and do a little of all of it.

For further info contact:
management@antfarm.dk