

Tue Madsen is Looking For Fresh Talent

Are you a struggling band starting out? How do you get ahead? What do you do to make your band get started in the best possible way? Can we really ask Tue Madsen?

Yes you can, and you should! Tue Madsen is on the look out for new fresh talent out there, so if you are it, you should make contact!

Getting ahead is hard if your product is not up to par.

Having a professional to help you out is a really good idea and that money will give you more than just a good sound. It can serve as the beginning of a working relationship that will end up helping your band in more ways than you can imagine.

However crappy your demo/ earlier recordings are you should send it in a mail along with a few details about the band, your plans and make that first initial contact. And then you just might have started something that will help you move forward.

For further info contact:
management@antfarm.dk

